

Maggie Murphy

Communications and Membership Specialist, Chamber of Marine Commerce

Maggie Murphy is the Communications and Membership Specialist at the Chamber of Marine Commerce, where she supports the organization's communications, digital media, and membership initiatives. Her responsibilities include contributing to the development of public-facing communications materials, as well as supporting internal documentation and strategic communications efforts aligned with the Chamber's organizational and advocacy objectives.

Prior to joining the Chamber, Maggie gained professional experience in public relations and digital marketing through roles at a media communications firm and a business-to-consumer marketing agency. Her professional background includes social media and email marketing, digital communications, journalism, and website development.

Maggie holds a degree in Communications and Media Studies and brings strong attention to detail, organization, and written communication skills to her role.
